ATTORNEY DOCKET NO.: 3926.069

Document 1

Japanese Patent Abstract No. 042 31 190 A entitled "METHOD AND DEVICE FOR LASER WELDING GALVANIZED STEEL SHEET" published on August 20, 1992.

It has already been proposed in accordance with Document 1 in the present specification to provide no gap between the sheets, but rather to position these over each other, then first to warm by means of a first laser beam until evaporation of the coating, and subsequently to weld the uncoated sheets by means of a second laser beam. Both laser beams and their associated optical devices are guided by means of a robot. A disadvantage therein is primarily the complexity and expense for the equipment of the two required optical systems.

Document 1 is in the English language.

Document 2

German Patent Application No. 195 06 768 Al entitled "Cutting and welding coated material with laser beam" published on August 31, 1995.

Document 5 is submitted herewith as an English language document in the patent family of Document 2.

Document 3

German Patent Application No. 44 07 190 Al entitled "PROCESS FOR PREPARING THE SEAM REGIONS OF COATED WORKPIECES FOR LASER BEAM WELDING AND LAP JOINT FOR WELDING COATED WORKPIECES" published on September 7, 1995.

Applicants are not aware of any English language document equivalent to Document 3, other than an English language abstract:

ATTORNEY DOCKET NO.: 3926.069

A process for preparing the seam regions (20) of coated workpieces (2, 3) for laser beam welding (5), especially galvanised sheet steel, in which knurled type surface structures in the region of the weld seam (50) which provide a space (a) between adjacent workpiece surfaces (44, 45) are produced. In order to improve a process with the steps described above in such a way that the drawbacks entailed by the mechanical process are avoided, in which the process is to be used especially also for three-dimensional adjacent workpiece surfaces, the knurled surface structures (51, 51') are produced by pulsed high-energy beams.

Document 4

Japanese Patent Abstract No. 110 47 967 A entitled "WELDING METHOD" published on February 23, 1999.

For improvement of the connection quality it has already been proposed to use spacers to produce narrow gaps between the sheets such that the vaporized coating material can escape. Suitable crater shaped spacers can be produced by laser strafing the upper surface (irradiating the sheet metal with pulsed laser to form roughness) according to Document 4 in the present specification.

Document 4 is in the English language.

The present Information Disclosure Statement is being filed after three months from the application's filing date but before the mailing date of the first Office Action on the merits,
